

Northeastern Student Food and Farm Conference

PANELISTS

Amirah Mitchell

Sistah Seeds

Amirah Mitchell is the founder of Sistah Seeds, a black owned seed business dedicated to connecting black and brown growers to their culturally significant seeds. She has worked in agriculture and food justice since 2007.

Eli Stogsdill

The Monocacy Farm Project

Eli Stogsdill is the project manager of Monocacy Farm Project, a small non-profit farm that works to model sustainable stewardship, provide educational involvement, and serve the needs of their local community.

Mark Reid

Easton Garden Works

Mark Reid runs Easton Garden Works, a working farm and series of community gardens throughout the West Ward area of Easton. He works to provide fresh, culturally significant produce to Easton residents as well as host community building events to bring together Easton's residents.